View the work of four local veteran artists. Subtlety, delicacy, complexity, and composition are masterfully presented in these works using the power of the not-so-simple line.

Debbie Ma, a well known graphic and fine artist, creates lively compositions that imbue calligraphy with painterly expression.

Mel Pekarsky, now emeritus, long-time head of the art department at Stony Brook, uses pencil to depict the beauty, fragility, and as he says, anxiety of the desert landscape.

Marianne Weil, sculptor and educator, combines glass with bronze and copper as she explores new spatial relationships.

Ellen Wiener, master printmaker, artist and scholar, layers meaning and visual references in her love of the printed page.
